This publication is to be used primarily in support of training military personnel as part of the Defense Language Nonresident Program. Topics in the areas of politics, international relations, mores, etc., which may be considered controversial from some points of view are sometimes included in language training for DLIFLC students, since military personnel may find themselves in positions where clear understanding of conversations or written material of this nature will be essential to their mission. The presence of controversial statements—whether real or apparent—in DLIFLC materials should not be construed as representing the opinions of the writers, the Defense Language Institute or the Department of Defense.

In DLI publications, the words "he," "him," and "his" denote both masculine and feminine genders. This statement does not apply to translations of foreign texts.

This publication is to be used primarily in support of training military personnel as part of the Defense Language Nonresident Program. Topics in the areas of politics, international relations, mores, etc., which may be considered controversial from some points of view are sometimes included in language training for DLIFLC students, since military personnel may find themselves in positions where clear understanding of conversations or written material of this nature will be essential to their mission. The presence of controversial statement -- whether real or apparent -- in DLIFLC materials should not be construed as representing the opinions of the writers, the Defense Language Institute or the Department of Defense.

In DLI publications, the words "he," "him," and "his" denote both masculine and feminine genders. This statement does not apply to translations of foreign texts.

Unit 31—Upheaval In Eastern Europe

This publication is to be used primarily in support of training military personnel as part of the Defense Language Nonresident Program. Topics in the areas of politics, international relations, mores, etc., which may be considered controversial from some points of view are sometimes included in language training for DLIFLC students, since military personnel may find themselves in positions where clear understanding of conversations or written material of this nature will be essential to their mission. The presence of controversial statement – whether real or apparent – in DLIFLC materials should not be construed as representing the opinions of the writers, the Defense Language Institute or the Department of Defense.

In DLI publications, the words "he," "him," and "his" denote both masculine and feminine genders. This statement does not apply to translations of foreign texts.

Listening Workbook 9, Unit 43

Unit 44—Changes in Rumania (1)

The end of 1989 meant drastic changes for the communist countries of Eastern Europe. At the end of December 1989, Rumania joined other socialist countries in the upheaval. This led to the downfall of Rumanian hardline communist leader Nicolae Ceausescu.

Unfortunately, the Rumanian revolution was stained with the blood of thousands of innocent people. The people of Rumania faced not only the force of Ceausescu and his Rumanian soldiers, but also the resistance of foreign mercenaries. Since a new government without censorship had already been established in Czechoslovakia several weeks before the revolution in Rumania started, the Czech media was able to keep the people of Czechoslovakia informed of events in Rumania. In the following two units, you will listen to texts being broadcast on Czech radio during the Rumanian revolution.

Exercise 1 Before listening to the text, complete this matching exercise. In column A you see Czech words and expressions. Match them with their English equivalents in column B by writing the letter from column B next to the appropriate word or expression in column A.
